CSA invites stakeholders to join its tokenization workshop in Toronto

TORONTO and CALGARY – The Canadian Securities Administrators (CSA) invites interested stakeholders to join the livestream for its upcoming Toronto tokenization workshop: Powering Growth and Competitiveness taking place on Thursday, June 11, 2026.

Building on the discussion in Calgary, the workshop is intended to bring together stakeholders and members of the CSA to obtain practical input on tokenization in capital markets. The Toronto workshop will include discussions about key existing and potential use cases that can reduce costs or improve efficiencies, legal questions requiring further analysis and resolution, friction points with existing securities laws, and topics that could benefit from regulatory guidance.

Join the livestream of the Toronto tokenization workshop: Powering Growth and Competitiveness:

Date: Thursday, June 11, 2026

Time: 1:00 – 4:30 p.m. (ET)

Through Project Tokenization, the CSA will work collaboratively with stakeholders to deepen regulatory understanding as tokenization evolves in capital markets. The initial phase of the project will explore the opportunities and risks of tokenization through engagement with stakeholders, issue mapping and targeted research. Subsequent phases could include a discussion paper or potentially the live testing of tokenized financial instruments and infrastructure within the CSA Collaboratory.

About the CSA Collaboratory

The CSA Collaboratory is a dedicated space for regulators and innovators to leverage and channel collective intelligence in support of Canada's evolving capital markets. It is the entry point for all Canadian market participants and investors to connect with CSA members to explore and provide feedback on new financial concepts and innovative business models. Insights from the Collaboratory can contribute significantly to regulatory policy development and provide market participants with data that can help inform decision-making.

About the CSA

The CSA is the council of securities regulators of Canada's provinces and territories. The CSA's objective is to improve, coordinate and harmonize regulation of the Canadian capital markets.
